

various friends of Silber Winterizing

Here we are at our fourth installment in our Christmas compilation series. It's always interesting to see how things will turn out. A week from the deadline I have eight tracks & then it explodes into twenty-six. Which is what usually happens actually.

This time out I guess the biggest surprise is the lack of covers (no legitimate Christmas classics & only two songs referencing them, hence the title Winterizing instead of something holiday related), but the rest of what you expect is there: Norwegian folk, shoegazer, aggressive ambient, indie ambient, & sound experiments. Also this time out half the artists have never appeared on one of our comps, so it's always nice to get to work with new friends & help introduce them to each other.

So sit back for two hours of music to warm your winter nights.
